

2010 Professional Development Workshop for Persian

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

A two-week residential professional development workshop for Persian instructors, July 12-23, 2010 on Penn's campus. The STARTALK program will accept 20 participants from schools and colleges around the country. Participants will receive training in Standards-based curriculum design, and materials development integrating technology. The main objective of this two-week residential workshop is to familiarize new and experienced teachers of Persian with the latest pedagogical trends in standards-based language teaching, with various methods in integrating technology for the teaching of Persian, and initiate further cooperation in language teaching.

FEES

Application fee: $25
Tuition: None (covered by the STARTALK Grant)

STIPEND & HOUSING

Participants will receive a stipend of $1,000 on successful completion of the program. On campus residential arrangements can be made.

CERTIFICATES

Participants will receive a University of Pennsylvania Certificate upon the Completion of the Program. Participants who wish to receive Penn Continuing Education Credit have the option of getting 1 CU at a cost of $500.

APPLICATIONS

To apply for the STARTALK program, please send a curriculum vitae, and a cover letter to: persianstartalk2010@gmail.com.

The deadline for applications is May 13, 2010.

CONTACT

Pardis Minuchehr, Program Director
pardis@sas.upenn.edu
(215) 746-2882